

Right—DAYBREAK—a bit of poetry that metropolitan late sleepers seldom associate with the idea of early rising and fishing schooners. This glimpse of sea romance left us by modern progress is the five masted Jennie Flood Kreger, pictured in this artistic camera study putting out from Boston Harbor at most any rising of the sun. Underwood

THE AVENUE OF LIGHT, an inspiring and symbolic approach to the building where the Armament Conference is being held in Washington. It is the latest and most supreme achievement of W. D'A. Ryan, illuminating expert of the San Francisco Exposition. The jeweled curtain between the two obelisks 85 feet high consists of 37,500 Novagem jewels the central sunburst contains the national emblems of the eight visiting nations. General Electric Co.

ITALY'S WAR HERO pays his respects to the United States Army at Fort Myer, Va., by reviewing the cavalry. An interesting study of General Armando Vittorio Diaz, victor of the Piave, whose great stroke in hurling back the Austrian hosts in June, 1918 paved the way for the armistice. General Diaz was honored with a salute of guns and a parade at Fort Myer. Paul Thompson

"DOC" JORDAN OF YALE. The sterling fullback of the Blue eleven who next to Captain Aldrich is the Bulldog's best scorer this fall. Jordan put up a corking game a week ago last Saturday when the Eli pigskin warriors trimmed Brown to the tune of 45 to 7 and is one of the several important reasons why sport prophets believe Tad Jones's 1921 eleven shapes up as the best since the days of Ted Coy. Underwood

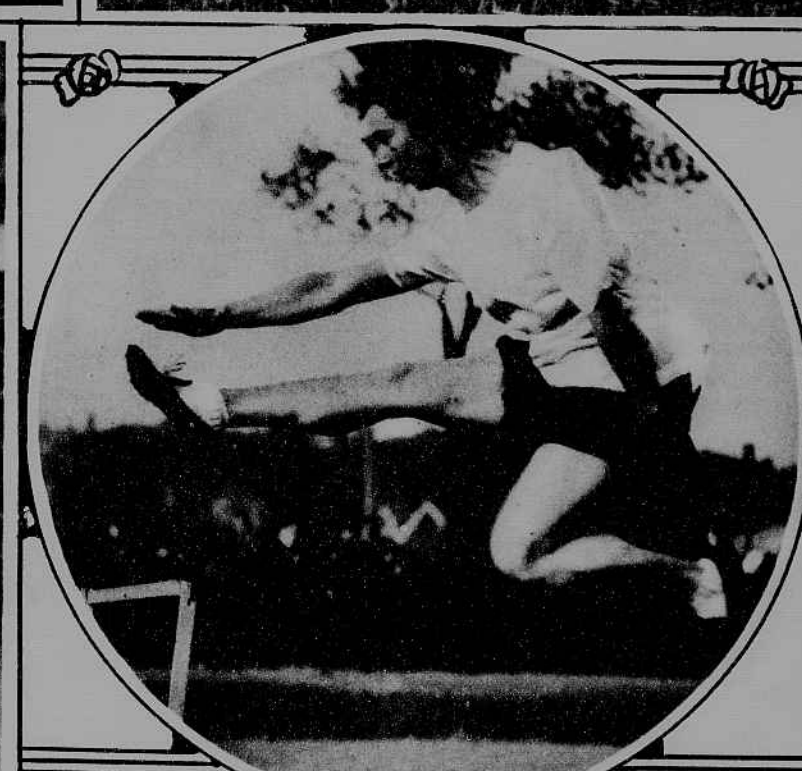

Left—MR. BURG-LAR! Be careful where you drop that incriminating revolver. For it will probably be picked up by one of Headquarters' newest and best four-legged detectives. Under the direction of the Shepherd Dog Club these clever canines are being trained for all kinds of protective and police work for use in the army, Red Cross and police departments. Underwood

THE ARMY'S YOUNGEST COLONEL, nine-year-old Uarda Burnette, gives a snappy salute in anticipation of her duties on Armistice Day. The military Miss Burnette received her honorary title of colonel from the 77th Division, at the head of which she will march next Friday. International

A PRINCESS THERE WAS, but now plain—we mean beautiful—Mrs. William B. Leeds. An attractive studio study of Xenia of Russia, bride in the most recent international romance, who was triply married in Paris to one of America's richest sons. Underwood

Right—WHAT AM I BID? William T. Tilden 2d, the world's famous tennis champion, as auctioneer at a recent benefit for the Fund for Devastated France at Jackson Heights, L. I. He is asking for bids on tennis balls autographed by President Harding. Outdoor Photo

Above—OVER THE TOP! At the Paddington recreation grounds, and judging by this sample of high hurdling by a Woolwich Polytechnic girl, the team of women athletes from London should have little difficulty in winning at the coming meet in Paris.

Right—FURRED IN AGAINST THE WINTER. In this rich coat of elephant American broadtail and dyed squirrel, muff of squirrel and slippers and hat of broadtail, fashioned by Otto Kahn, milady of fashion amply justifies the title of "America's greatest furbearing animal."

